HONORED BY CONFEDERATES.

PRESIDENT THE RECIPIENT OF MANY CRACIOUS WOEDS.

HE WEARS A BADGE WHICH WAS PINNED ON

Macen, Ga., Dec. 19.-The President and his party reached Macon promptly on time, and were received by the largest crowd which has gathered in Macon since the last visit of Jefferson Davis to this city. At the station was a Reception Committee, consisting of a number of the most prominent citizens of the town.

prawn up in front of the station was the Bibb County Camp of the Confederate Survivors' Association, four hundred strong, headed by Commander C. M. Wiley. As the President reached the old Confederates, he was halted by Colonel Wiley, who addressed him as fol-

President: As commander of the Bibb by Veteran Association and of Bibb County No. 484, I extend to you and your party if generous, hearty and sincere welcome to cloved city. You, sir, have endeared your-the hearts of all Confederate soldiers on ant of the noble scritments expressed by in regard to our Confederate dead. I as-you that these old, maimed and infirm vets, who have met here to do you honor tos, who have met here to do you honor tog appreciate such words of love and kindness, and uttered too, by the President of this great country and by one who was a member of the Union Army in the sixtles. I hope and pray,
Mr. President, that God in His infinite mercy may so direct the future legislation of this country that the living Confederates will be remembyed. This country and the Stars and Stripes Telong as much to the Confederate veterans as bred. This country and the Stars and Stripes relong as much to the Confederate veterans as it does to the Grand Army of the Republic. The South proved its loyalty to this grand old country when war was declared with Spain, and now, henceforth and forever she will be found ready to take up arms to defend our country and our flag.

Mr. President, on behalf of these brave and maimed Confederate soldiers of Bibb County, Ga. I present to you this parchment on which is engrossed in letters of gold, the beautiful sentiment expressed by you in our capital city in regard to our honored dead.

As the President was about to proceed Dr. Roland B. Hall, another veteran, addressed him

The Presidential party was driven in carriages to the stand where the President was to review the troops of General Bates's division, of General Wilson's Army Corps. As his carriage and decomposition of the carriage of ssed the Confederate monument, an old Con-lerate veteran frantically waved a Confed-ate flag, while by his side was the son of the erate flag, while by his side was the son of the colonel of one of Georgia's hardest fighting Concolonel of one of the organ s hardest lighting con-federate regiments, who was as vigorously wav-ing the Stars and Stripes. Macon, Ga., Dec. 19.-President McKinley arrived here at 9:30 a. m. He was received by many enthusiastic persons. The President's party drove out to the reviewing grounds, where General Wilson's command was reviewed by the President.

At the station, the President's party was met by fifteen carriages. Lined up along the street was the 7th Cavalry, the bright yellow of their vercoat facings making a brilliant app the fog and drizzle that prevailed. After driving through the streets, the President took his place on the reviewing-stand. On one side General Rates. As the brigades passed, the respective commanders took their places on the weather, many persons were present. The troops passed in review in this order: Third Engineers, 2d Ohio Infantry, 3d North Carolina Infantry, 6th Virginia Infantry and 7th Cav-

Mrs. McKinley remained in the parlor-car while in Macon, and bowed frequently to the crowd that gathered at the station. On account of her slight cold it was not considered advisable for her to face the rain. President McKinley spoke briefly from the reviewing-stand, say-

It gives me great pleasure to meet and greet the citizens of the city of Macon, with many of whom I have been associated in public life. It has given me pleasure to witness the review of the soldiers of the United States. How much, indeed, has this Nation to be thankful for at this hour! With what reverent gratitude we should express our thankfulness to Divine Providence, who has so tenderly cared for the American people! We have been at war with a foreign Power. That war ended after 113 days of conflict—a conflict on two oceans, a conflict in the East and the West Indies, twelve thousand miles apart, with fifty thousand of our soldiers on distant shores and twenty thousand sailors and mariness affoat, with a loss in Army and Navy of less than two thousand, and without the loss of ship or sailor or soldier or fag by capture. JERNEGAN DICKERING FOR IMMUNITY. Boston, Dec. 19.-It was learned here to-day that the report from Middletown, Conn., printed this morning, that the Rev. P. F. Jernegan, formerly morning, that the Rev. P. F. Jernegan, formerly the hend of the Electrolytic Marine Saits Company, of Lubec, Me., had turned over £5500 of his share of the profits from stock sales of the corporation as a compensation for permission to come home unmolested, was somewhat premature. It appears that a committee having in charge the settlement of the affairs of the company has had several conferences with Colonel W. S. B. Hopkins, counsel for Jernegan, relative to a compromise with Jernegan, but circumstances have not made it possible for the committee to guarantee the protection to Jernegan which, it is said, is the condition under which any money would be returned.

FOUNDER AND RECTOR OF THE CHURCH OF ST. MARY THE VIRGIN.

The Rev. Thomas McKee Brown, for more than a quarter of a century rector of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, in West Forty-sixth-st., between Broadway and Sixth-ave., died early yesterday morning at the tectory of the church, after an ill-ness of only a few days. One week ago last Sunday Father Brown preached his twenty-eighth anniversary sermin as rector of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, and appeared only at the solemn high mass, on account of a slight cold, from which he was suffering. The cold grew steadily worse, but in spite of that Father Brown appeared at the meeting of one of the church guilds on Tues-day evening. In the course of the meeting he had to send for a physician, but he delayed doing so until Thursday, when pneumonia developed, and he was forced to take to his bed. Dr. J. E. Janvrin was called to attend Father Brown, and two nurses were in constant attendance until death occurred. On Saturday morning there appeared to be a fair chance for recovery, and the sufferer was able to sit up in bed. The same evening, however, there was a relapse, and Father Brown grew steadily worse, until he died at 3 o'clock yesterday morn

Father Brown was born in Philadelphia in 1841, and after obtaining his early education at the Episcopal Academy in the city of his birth entered Trinity College, at Hartford, Conn., in the class college for a year, owing to effairs connected with General Theological Seminary, in this city. In such only one year after entering the institution, and he was graduated therefrom in 1885. Later in the same year he was ordained a deacon, and began the work in the Church as assistant at the Church Juan West Fourteenth-st. Thence he went to St. John's Church, in Brooklyn, after he had been made a priest, and served as assistant to Dr. George F Seymour, who afterward became the Bishop of

From the earliest years of his connection with the Church Father Brown had been known as an earnest advocate of High Church dectrine. His argument advocate of High Church dectrine. His argument advocate of High Church dectrine. His argument devotion to what is called ritualism was one would be cowardice in one man would be the acme to contain the contained of the contained deacon, and his esponsal of the practices of High Church men grew more enthusiastic with the passening of years. In 1863 Father Erown began the agitation for the establishment of a high church in this city, and as a result of his efforts the Church.

the custom of employing in the services candles, elaborate vestments and incense was almost unknown in this country. At first the resulting criticism was wide and distinctly unfriendly for the most part. It is not too much to say that the ornate services in the Church of St. Mary the Virgin gave rise to considerable bitterness of feeling among Low Churchman, but of late years this feeling has to a great extent died out. Such had been Father Brown's prominence among High Church mer, that he may be said to have been, since the death of the Rev. Dr. James De Koven, warden of Rache College. In 1872, the recognized leader of the ritualistic movement, sometimes called the Catholic restoration, which, as defined by its friends, has had as its object the restoration in the teachings and practice of the Episcopal Church of the Catholic faith as it was taught in the early days of Christianity and preserved in the Rook of Common Prayer and to correct what were held to be Protestant misinterpretations on the prayer-book. But with all his enthusiasm for ritualism Father Brown was notably successful in maintaining harmonious relations with his theological superiors and with Bishop Potter in particular.

The church building now occupied by the parish of St. Mary the Virgin was erected in 1855 with funds supplied almost entirely by one member of the consequently.

trustees act as pailbearers at the funeral was accepted, and a committee to draft resolutions was appointed. The trustees decided to request the family to permit the placing of the body in state before the high alter on Wednesday and until the funeral on Thursday. A resolution was passed asking the Rev. Dr. McCook, of Trinity College, to preach a memorial sermon on Sunday, January 15.

OPENING OF THE COURT-MARTIAL OF CAPTAINS BLEECKER AND MEEKS.

DEMURRERS TO THE CHARGES OVERRULED BY THE COURT AND ADJOURNMENT TAKEN TO

The first court-martial of a commissioned officer

since the trial and reprimand of Colonel Seward of the 9th Regiment, in 1864, for violating a discretionary parade order, began last night in Regiment Armory, Park-ave, and Thirty-fourth-st., Captains W. F. Meeks and A. J. Bleecker, of the 71st, being placed on trial for criticising the conduct of Major Clinton H. Smith and Captain John H. Whittle, whom they accused of cowardice in the face of the enemy at Santiago on July 1. The formal charges are: "First-Violation of Paragraph VII of the military regulations, which reads: 'Deliberations or discussions among military men con-veying censure toward others in the service, and all publications of a personal nature, are prohibited.' Second-Conduct prejudical to good order and military discipline." The court is composed of Colonel Solomon E. Japha, 169th Regiment, president; Lieutenant-Colonel Adolph L. Kline.

Judge-Adocate Grout opened the trial by reading the charges. The articles published in the daily news-papers were included in these. Captain Bleecker was the first to be charged. When asked to plead, counsel for the defence objected on the ground that the facts submitted did not constitute sufficient evidence to sustain the charge. The same plea was made in regard to the second charge. Mr. Van Duzer then asked that an adjournment be taken in order that Captain Weeks might be called, might plead and the same objections be

The Court retired to consider this, and after an adjournment of five minutes returned and anflounced that the case against Captain Bleecker would have to be tried first.

Mr. Van Duzer then argued in support of his objection. He said that the charges were the most serious and peculiar he had ever noticed. There vas no charge that the statement was untrue; the charge was purely technical, and he did not think the court could more than reprimand officers for making a statement that was truthful. He would not claim that the accused was an officer of the United States Volunteers when he made the statement complained of, and therefore not amenable to State court-martial, but he wanted to insist that the charge is purely technical. An officer publish anything he pleased as long as it did not relate to official transactions.

Captain Bleecker did not want to plead a technicality to a technical charge. He insisted on proving the truthfulness of the printed articles. In only one place he said was there an inference against Colonel Downs, and that was where Colonel Downs, Major Smith and Captain Whittle and staff officers were found by an orderly three miles in the rear of the r giment during the battle of San

Hobson, Schley, Sampson and even General shafter have written reports in newspapers and magazines. Shall they be accused of censure?

Mr. Van Duzer's remarks were much enjoyed by the spectators, and the sergeant-at-arms had to call for order frequently. Judge-Advecate Grout's argument against the demurrer was short and concise. He said that if an officer had a complaint or charges to prefer against a fellow-officer he should prefer the complaint or charges against the officer had a complaint or charges the prefer against a fellow-officer he should prefer the complaint or charges against the officer had a complaint or charges against the officer had been deviated by the fact of the country of inquiry then the justification of his complaint and charges could be brought out. Mr. Grout contended that no officer in the millitary service had any business going before the public in the newspapers before bringing the charges in the manner prescribed by millitary law. He said that the articles published are prejudicial to good order and military discipline.

The Court then retired from the room to decide on the demurrer to the charges raised by Mr. Van Duzer, and after fifteen minutes' deliberation returned and overruled the demurrer. Captain Bleecker, through his counsel, then pleaded not guilty to all the charges. On the motion of the Judge-Advocate, an adjournment in the case of Captain Bleecker, was then taken until after Captain Mecks had pleaded. Then the formalities of the first case were all gone through again. During the reading of the charges, flashlights were set off that the Court might be photographed. The officers spruced up in order to take nice pictures. Even the accused ca
